

J.I. Case history abounds with interesting stories about inventions, mergers, trials and tribulations of the pioneers who gave us the tools that took the human drudgery out of farming.

The J.I. Case Collectors' Association magazine, Old Abe's News, features stories about other Case collectors and their collections, original Case history articles, technical tips and letters from other readers in each issue. Members use the for sale/wanted ad section for locating and selling Case parts, literature and memorabilia of all sorts. This service is free to non-commercial members.

A fine old example of an early Case gas/oil two-cylinder tractor, circa, 1916.

Today there are Case collectors' association members in 49 of the 50 states, in Australia, New Zealand, Iceland, the United Kingdom, and in many European countries. Come join us as we celebrate a unique agricultural heritage and a fine fraternal hobby.

J.I. Case Collectors' History

The JICCA was founded in 1984, and has been promoting the Case collecting hobby ever since. We have held conventions in over 50 different cities and published over 100 magazine issues relating to the Case company.

As we look forward our goal is to preserve the equipment used in the past and broaden the appreciation and knowledge for the Case Company and the equipment they manufactured. We welcome you to be part of this great organization.

J.I. Case was a leading producer of quality garden tractors and attachments from 1965 until 1983.

J.I. Case Collectors' Association, Inc.
P.O. Box 638
Beecher, IL 60401

the organization for folks who enjoy
J.I. Case people, history and equipment

An Invitation to Join a Great Hobby

the J.I. Case
Collectors' Association, Inc.

Equipment of all ages and sizes turns up at Case summer shows.

We would like to invite you to become a member of the J.I. Case Collectors' Association. Our organization is dedicated to the proposition of enjoying the people, equipment and history surrounding the J.I. Case Company.

J.I. Case Company manufactured more steam engines than any other firm.

Our agricultural heritage is rich in tales and interesting stories of how we came to the position of leadership in feeding the world. We believe that "old iron" collecting and enjoying is a wonderful hobby and a great way to preserve part of this heritage.

Case manufactured automobiles from 1911 until 1924

The Case Company built a wide variety of farm equipment, including this early hay press.

Case collectors enjoy two national conventions annually. Our summer show/convention is in a different part of the continent each year, and is the place to show, see and enjoy Case equipment. Our winter conventions are the time to swap parts and tour Case assembly plants or other points of interest, hold Case auctions and do lots of visiting with other collectors. Our hobby is non-competative, non-threatening and very enjoyable. It is, however, quite contagious!

Membership Application

Membership cost is $25.00 annually. A quarterly subscription to the J.I. Case Collectors' Association magazine, Old Abe's News is included with your membership.

name _____

address _____

city _____

state & zip code _____

New Member Renewal

Membership fees are $25.00 each year in the United States, and Canadian Provinces, $40.00 overseas. Canadian and overseas members please pay via postal money order or international draft in U.S. funds only.

complete and mail with your check or U.S. money order to:

J.I. Case Collectors' Association, Inc.

P.O. Box 638

Beecher, IL 60401

web